Resumo (objetivos, atividades e resultados esperados) - em PT e/ou EN:	New forms and patterns of employment are being created in response to the growing and changing sport labour market and to address new characteristics and realities of the sector. These include for example: employee sharing, job sharing and casual work amongst others. The innovative FORMS project will provide the opportunity for the consortium to analyse new forms of employment created within the sector. The main expected outcomes of the FORMS project are: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Desk research on the emerging forms of employment in the sport sector

	2. A Summary Paper presenting and describing the emerging forms of employment in the European sport sector 3. National Consultation Roundtable Meetings on the emerging forms of employment in sport 4. Compendium of good practices and series of recommendations on the emerging forms of employment in sport The FORMS project will facilitate further steps towards the professionalisation and capacity building of sport organisations; it will support the sustainability of employment and career development in sport. FORMS will offer an effective way of researching and presenting new forms and patterns of employment in sport, and to provide adapted solutions for a better functioning of the sport labour market across the European Union to boost job creation and opportunities and increase labour market participation. The full picture of diversity and tracking of change in employment in sport could not be achieved through actions solely at the national level.
